

Phyllis Cureton is from Washington (DC) where she grew up and learned the value of education, hard work and a relationship with God. As an adult, she attained her MBA from Harvard University and pursued a successful business career in corporate America in strategic planning, change management and real estate. Midcareer, she was called to pursue her M.Div. from Oral Roberts University where she learned the power of the Holy Spirit working in, through and around us.

Phyllis has spent more than 17 years in Hospital Chaplaincy, in the mental/behavioral health arena as well as medical-surgical world. She has been Board Certified by the Association of Professional Chaplains (APC) since 2012 and is transitioning to live in South Carolina where the paternal side of her family resides. She is currently a Minister at Reedy River MBC under the leadership of Rev. Aaron T. Brown, Sr. She believes the power of forgiveness is as potent and important as the demonstration of God's power through signs, wonders and miracles.
